

Molecular Medicine– from Immunodeficiency to COPD

Vienna City of Science Symposium

Hosts:

Augustine M. K. Choi, MD

Stephen and Suzanne Weiss Dean Weill Cornell Medicine (WCM)

Wolfgang Aulitzky, MD

Associate Dean for International Medicine and Distance Learning (WCM)

Hugh C. Hemmings, Jr., MD, PhD

Senior Associate Dean for Research (WCM)

Georg Stingl, MD, PhD

Chairman Emeritus, Division of Immunology, Allergy & Infectious Diseases (DIAID),
Department of Dermatology, Medical University of Vienna

Friday, November 16, 2018 2:00-5:00 PM

Weill Auditorium (C-200), Meyer Building, 1300 York Avenue,
New York, NY 10065

Opening Remarks & Introductions

Inborn Errors of Human Immunity - from Genomics to Targeted Therapies

Presented by: Kaan Boztug, MD

Director, Ludwig Boltzmann Institute for Rare and Undiagnosed Diseases, Vienna, Austria

COPD: Old and New Pathways

Presented by: Augustine Choi, MD

Dean, Weill Cornell Medicine, New York

COPD: How does our Scientific Understanding inform Therapeutic Decisions?

Presented by: Fernando Martinez, MD

Chief, Division of Pulmonary and Critical Care Medicine, Weill Cornell Medicine, New York

Immunological Tolerance in Organ Transplantation

Presented by: Thomas Wekerle, MD

Professor of Transplantation Immunology, Medical University of Vienna

Supported by the American Austrian Foundation, the Vienna Science and Technology Fund & Royalty Pharma

* Lectures are recorded and are available to individuals with a WCM CWID on WCM Central